THE HISTORY...

June Dairy Month, an annual tradition developed to celebrate the dairy industry and its many contributions to our society, originated in 1937. During its first two years, 1937 and 1938, it was called National Milk Month and ran from June 10 to July 10. The 1937 event, sponsored by chain stores, was given the theme "Keep Youthful - Drink Milk." Originally supported by the National Dairy Council (NDC), June Dairy Month was established to help stabilize dairy demand during periods of peak production when cows were turned out to pasture. To assist in that effort, NDC provided promotional materials to the 6,300 stores participating. "June Dairy Month" became the official title of the promotion in 1939 and focused on greater use of dairy products. Campaign material, prepared by NDC, was offered to producers, processors and dairy product distributors. June Dairy Month was initially funded by a one cent per pound butterfat assessment in June.

During the war years, less emphasis was placed on promotion, more on surviving the war. The retailers helped customers receive an adequate supply of dairy products and provided information to help use them properly.

After the war, efforts focused on resuming dairy product usage and regaining 'lost' butter sales. In 1947 the slogan was "30 Days for ADA in June." The goal was "Sales, not Surplus." By 1950, retailers, producers and processors all worked together to promote June Dairy Month.

In 1955 American Dairy Association (ADA) became the national leader for June Dairy Month campaigns. The emphasis changed to sales promotion programs for dairy products, and advertising and merchandising programs were added to an already-effective public relations program. The June promotion became a month-by-month merchandising event in which one or more foods made from milk were highlighted nationwide on a monthly basis. This advertising was visible evidence of dairy farmers' dollars at work. June Dairy Month continued to evolve over the years and entire communities across the country, both rural and urban, have embraced it and have become involved in many ways. On-farm events such as breakfasts and open houses are popular in June, with dairy farmers throwing open their doors so that people can learn more about how they take care of cows and produce the milk that people depend on for good health.

Some celebrate with product samples at creameries, grocery stores and local banks and businesses. Some dairy princess coronations happen in June, and it would not be unusual to come across a cow milking contests, cow visits at zoos, or a running event honoring June and using chocolate milk as a refuel beverage.

Traditional media outlets, especially in communities where dairy farms dot the landscape, often promote June Dairy month with remote on-farm broadcasts or trivia contests. The newer format of social media also allows for pointing out the goodness of dairy during the month.

The special link between farmers and consumers is really the basis of what

June Dairy Month is all about - celebrating and using a wonderful product that's real, fresh and simple.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH!

6 MAIN BREEDS OF DAIRY COWS

AYRSHIRE
A breed of dairy cattle that originated from the County of Ayr in Scotland. The average mature Ayrshire cow weighs 1,000-1,300 pounds and has red markings that can vary in color from orange to brown.

BROWN SWISS
Originated on the Swiss Alps. Known for producing the second largest quantity of milk annually of any dairy breed, their milk averages 4 percent butterfat and 3.4 percent protein which makes it ideal for cheese production. Brown Swiss are gray-brown in color and are known for their immense size, large ears and docile temperament.

GUERNSEY
A small, cream-and-brown breed of dairy cattle that produces more milk per unit of body weight than any other breed. Guernseys are renowned for the high butterfat content of their milk. Bred on the British Channel Island of Guernsey and descended from cattle stock brought from nearby Normandy.

HOLSTEIN
A black and white dairy cow (though there are some "Red Holsteins") that is the most predominant breed of dairy cattle worldwide. The Holstein originated in the province of Friesland, The Netherlands. They are known for having the highest milk production of all of the breeds of dairy cattle.

JERSEY
A breed of dairy cattle that is renowned for the high butterfat content of its milk. Jersey cows are smaller than other breeds (800 to 1,200 pounds) and are known for their big eyes, honey-brown color and docile natures.

MILKING SHORTHORN
A breed of reddish-brown and white dairy cattle that originated in Britain. They are large in size.

FAQ - About Cows
How much milk does a cow give each day?
On average, a cow will produce 6-7 gallons of milk each day.

What do cows eat?
Cows eat about 100 pounds of feed each day, which is a combination of hay, grain and silage (fermented corn or grass). They drink a lot of water too – up to 50 gallons a day.

How many stomachs do cows have?
A cow has one stomach with four different chambers, which is why many people say that a cow has four stomachs.

How many breeds of dairy cattle are there?
There are six main breeds of dairy cows: Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Holstein, Jersey and Milking Shorthorn.

What do you call male and female dairy animals?
Males are called bulls. Females, prior to giving birth, are called calves or heifers. Once they give birth, female dairy animals are called cows. All cows give milk once they have a calf.

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH!

COOL FACTS:

Few people can resist the creamy, frosty texture of ice cream. This is why ice cream is often referred to as The Great American Dessert. However, ice cream didn't have its origins in America; early descriptions of an iced dessert can be traced as far back as the 4th century B.C. Later, Roman Emperor Nero enjoyed an ice and fruit concoction, and ordered ice to be brought down from the mountains for this very purpose. The Chinese also created frozen milk recipes, and its likely that early ice creams were first brought from China to Europe by explorers. Naturally, ice cream made its progression from the royal circles of Europe and eventually landed on North American shores. George Washington and Thomas Jefferson were known to serve ice cream to their guests in the 1700s. Dolly Madison started selling ice cream mainstream in 1812. Today, ice cream (originally called iced cream) has grown to one of the most popular desserts of all time. There are dozens of ice cream franchises and many people even make homemade ice cream thanks to personal ice cream makers. The preferences in ice cream vary from person to person. Some prefer hard ice cream while others enjoy smooth soft varieties (British chemists discovered a method of doubling the amount of air in ice cream creating soft ice cream). Despite there being hundreds of flavor possibilities, vanilla, chocolate, and a tie for butter pecan and strawberry top the list of the most popular.
